

Students Organizing Against Pollution

About Us

The SOAP project (Students Organizing Against Pollution) is an initiative aimed at empowering the average citizen of New Jersey with the ability to learn, share, and/or contribute knowledge pertaining to pollution in the environment.

Find pollution sites near you.

Data Sources

Our pollution data comes directly from the US Environmental Protection Agency. More specifically, we use data from the Toxics Release Inventory. Information regarding politicians and legislation is provided by the New Jersey State Government.

Contribute

By creating an account with us or by logging in with Facebook, you can create and share your own posts regarding pollution near you. If we are missing a pollution site, help us out by creating a post about it. Spread awareness by sharing via Facebook, Twitter, and other social networks.

Update Data

